1. [REDACTED] opened the meeting with the presentation of an outline of his responsibilities as Executive Secretary of the Career Service Committee, pointing out that his part in the management of a program for the establishment of a Career Corps in the Central Intelligence Agency would center on liaison amongst the various working groups by means of which each group could be advised of overlapping responsibilities and problems of common interest.

2. Part XIV of the Confidential Funds Regulations was mentioned with respect to application of benefits. It was generally considered that benefits recommended by this Group would apply only to Staff Employees and Staff Agents. However, special consideration would be given to Career Agents.

3. The Committee meeting was then opened for general discussion of the problem confronting the Career Benefits Group. The consensus of this discussion was that, prior to the overall problem, attention of the Committee would be directed to the more immediate problem of providing a more equitable hazardous-duty pay structure. It was agreed that this subject would be the first to be considered on any agenda for committee action and is to be studied at its second meeting at 1530 on Thursday, 25 October 1951.

4. The following officers were elected for management of Group affairs:
